

The University of Calgary's drama department wants to create a performance with immigrant artists outside of the university!

Are you an immigrant in Calgary?

Do you want to be part of a 'laboratory' theatre where we create work with artists from different cultures?

Do you like to explore theatre as a social tool?

Are you looking for a space to share your unique perspective and engage with others' perspectives?

If yes, you should join us!

I am Saeid Asgarian, director and MFA Candidate at UCalgary, and I will be making a performance with ten participant actors as part of my research to analyze theatre's role as a social tool for the integration of new immigrants. The project has been approved by UCalgary Ethics (Project REB22-1810).

WE NEED YOU!

Half of our group members will be Drama students from UCalgary, and the other half will be immigrant artists living in Calgary. Both groups will work together in a month-long process to create an original performance in catwalk form. No formal acting experience is necessary.

Each participant performer will be paid a $100 honorarium at the conclusion of the production.

Questions will be answered, and more details provided on the audition day.

Hope to see you at the audition!!

Audition Information:

May 10 from 3pm to 9pm.

Doolittle Studio, Craigie Hall F206, University of Calgary.

Please prepare a 1 min movement piece, and bring your favourite poem to share in any language. (No need to perform it or theatricalize it, simply sharing it aloud is just fine)

Director Info:

Saeid Asgarian is a professional director with his first master's degree in theatre directing from the University of Tehran. In his current Theatre Studies graduate work here at UCalgary, he is analyzing the role of theatre as a social tool for integration. Saeid has directed, written, dramaturged, acted, and stage designed dozens of professional productions including Room No. 3 (2022), Life (2021), 60 Minutes Minus One (2019), A Memory of Two Mondays by Arthur Miller (2019), Winter by Jon Fosse (2018), A Behanding in Spokane by Martin McDonough (2018), Three Sisters by Anton Chekhov (2017), etc. His current artistic approach includes participatory and laboratory theatre to create his shows and understand better what theatre can do for society and humans.
